AUDIENCE INSIGHTS

Demographics

78%

78% of orders came from Newcastle postcodes (NE1–NE7), showing strong local loyalty and concentrated demand.

Product Interest

65%

65% of sales were from Seasonal Bundles (“Festive Cake Boxes” and “Winter Celebration Cakes”), indicating successful themed positioning.

Device Preference

82%

82% of conversions were on mobile (despite higher bounce rates than desktop), highlighting both customer preference and a critical opportunity for UX improvements.

Peak Engagement

40%

Highest engagement and orders occurred on Friday afternoons and Saturday mornings, with a 40% increase in pre-orders for weekend collection/delivery.

TOP-PERFORMING CONTENT

Video Content

22%

15-second Instagram Reels showing cake decorating processes had 22% higher engagement and drove 18% more clicks to the website compared to static posts.

Local Influencer Content

9%

Partnerships with Newcastle food bloggers and micro-influencers resulted in a 9% lift in conversion rate during campaign weeks, with highest performance from Instagram Story takeovers.

User-Generated Content

Reposting customer photos of our cakes (with permission) increased authenticity and boosted local trust—31% more saves and shares on featured posts, extending organic reach.

KEY INSIGHTS

1. Influence of Video & Visual Content

Our 15-second Instagram Reels and Facebook video ads generated 22% higher engagement compared to static imagery. These videos—which showcased cake decorating, behind-the-scenes baking, and customer unboxings—proved highly effective in capturing attention and conveying quality. The format's success indicates that our audience values authenticity and process-driven storytelling, not just polished final products. This insight supports a strategic shift toward more video-first content across social platforms.

2. Seasonal and Themed Product Demand

65% of sales came from our seasonal “Festive Cake Boxes” and “Winter Celebration Cakes.” This shows that customers are motivated by limited-time offerings and holiday positioning. The data suggests that themed collections create urgency and increase average order value. Additionally, localised promotions tied to Newcastle events saw higher traction, reinforcing the importance of community relevance in product launches.

3. Peak Order Times Reflect Local Behaviour

Order spikes occurred consistently on Friday afternoons and Saturday mornings, aligning with weekend plans and local pickup/delivery preferences. This behaviour indicates that customers are planning indulgences and gatherings in advance, presenting an opportunity to promote pre-orders more aggressively. Evening social media engagement also translated to next-morning orders, highlighting the role of night-time browsing in decision-making.

KEY INSIGHTS

4. High Mobile Conversion Signals UX Opportunity

With 82% of conversions coming from mobile devices, it's clear that our customers prefer to browse and order on smartphones. However, session analytics show a higher bounce rate on mobile pages compared to desktop, suggesting that the mobile experience—especially checkout and menu navigation—could be smoother. This represents both a challenge and a clear opportunity to increase conversion by improving mobile usability.

5. Loyalty-Driven Revenue Underpins Growth

68% of orders came from repeat customers, demonstrating strong brand loyalty within the Newcastle community. These customers had a 15% higher average order value compared to first-time buyers. This reinforces the value of relationship-focused marketing and suggests our current customer base is highly receptive to retention efforts, such as loyalty programmes and exclusive offers.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Invest Heavily in Short-Form Video Content

- Action: Allocate at least 40% of the content budget to video production, focusing on Instagram Reels, TikTok tutorials, and Facebook Stories.
 - Rationale: Video drove significantly higher engagement and conversion. We can expand into "cake decorating tutorials," "a day in the bakery," and "customer testimonials" to build trust and interest.
 - Expected Outcome: Increase engagement rates by 15–20% and improve click-to-order conversion on social platforms.

2. Launch a "Weekend Pre-Order" Programme

- Action: Create a dedicated "Weekend Treats" pre-order section on the website, promoted from Wednesdays to Fridays.
 - Rationale: Capitalises on peak ordering windows, improves kitchen planning, reduces weekend rush stress, and can include incentives like a free hot drink with pre-orders.
 - Expected Outcome: Increase weekend order volume by 25% and improve customer satisfaction through smoother collection/delivery experiences.

3. Expand Seasonal & Dietary-Specific Ranges

- Action: Develop 3–4 new seasonal bundles per quarter and expand vegan, gluten-free, and allergen-friendly options.
- Rationale: High demand for themed and dietary-inclusive products. This meets customer needs and positions Crust & Crumb as an inclusive, innovative bakery.
- Expected Outcome: Attract new customer segments and increase average transaction value through bundled offerings.

RECOMMENDATIONS

4. Optimise Mobile User Experience

- Action: Conduct a mobile UX audit, improve page load speed, simplify the checkout process to three clicks or fewer, and introduce Apple Pay/Google Pay options.
 - Rationale: Mobile is the primary ordering channel; a smoother experience will reduce cart abandonment and increase conversion.
 - Expected Outcome: Aim to reduce mobile bounce rate by 10% and increase mobile conversion rate by 5% within six months.

5. Introduce a Digital Loyalty & Retention Scheme

- Action: Launch a points-based loyalty app or card, offering rewards for repeat purchases, referrals, and social media engagement.
- Rationale: Repeat customers are our largest revenue source. A structured loyalty programme encourages more frequent visits and higher lifetime value.
- Expected Outcome: Increase repeat purchase rate by 15% and grow customer lifetime value by at least 20% over the next year.

CONCLUSION

This holiday campaign demonstrated strong performance with a 28% year-over-year revenue increase, surpassing our 25% growth target.
